Dear Sirs:

As an individual who suffers from paruresis I feel it is important for you to consider the recommendations set forth by the International Paruresis Association in regards to your new testing pollacy.

I'm absolutely certain that you can obtain the desired results for individuals who suffer from parauresis using the other collection methods. I'm guessing that hair and blood tests are probably more accurate than urine. In this case that would be the only humane allowance for testing that you good give an individual who is paruretic.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Cordes
